I truly enjoyed this game, but if you're anything like me, and you just have to see the full story, don't bother, anytime you try to watch the last cutscene, your game will shut down. I was incredibly frustrated. If you do not care though, then yeah, it is a fun 6 hours.. Cyto calls itself a puzzle game, but it really is not. The music is good and the art work helps fit together a strong world, but that's about it. The story does not link the two together and the game play is not anything that makes you think, just trial and error. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=TU0YNakxuOs&list=UU7-PLIhjsEBwIQXqKxmNpA>. Really cute, fun game to kill time with!. Cyto is a well thought-off Indie puzzle game in an attractive and colourful setting. It was developed by the Ukrainian studio Room 8 and succeeds admirably in what it sets out to do: to provide no-nonsense, casual gameplay. The core gameplay is built around a more than decent physics engine that allows for puzzles of gradually increasing difficulty. By carefully adding new gameplay elements, the developers kept my interest for quite some time, and the above average, colourful graphics help a lot to provide quite some hours of carefree entertainment.

There is even a story behind it all: you play as Cyto, who has lost his/her memory and needs to collect snippets of memory during a voyage through space and several worlds/universes. By collecting these snippets, more and more levels and worlds are unlocked, as are parts of the - basic - storyline. In some ways, Cyto reminded me of World of Goo: there too, one basic but flexible physics-element provided some quite interesting challenges. Cyto is generally less hardcore and more forgiving: the puzzles get seldomly really difficult, and there is always the option to skip a certain level. This grants the game a more casual character, as does the relaxing and very appropriate music.

Mission accomplished - Cyto comes with Steam trading cards, but misses achievements which could have been easily implemented into this kind of game.

Overall score: 8/10. I bought this game to support Ukrainian developers, but mostly because the whole atmosphere of this game seemed interesting and the soundtrack that I heard in the video attracted my attention as well. This game didn't disappoint me at all. Though here you won't find such Steam elements as Workshop availability or achievements \(at least at the current moment\), this game is truly awesome. It makes you think even more than other modern games with "shoot-and-fly" gameplay. "Cyto" is worth all the money spent on it.

I recommend this game because of:

- -Nice and cute main character;
- -Puzzling and challenging levels with the outstanding design;
- -Ambient atmosphere;
- -Perfectly designed SFX;
- -Great soundtrack

And there are many levels to go.

It's a good game but i can't recommend it because the game freeze at the last level. We can't know the end of the story, which is really frustrating !!! First impressions:

I've played for 15-20 minutes so far. I stopped to have lunch =)

(optional let's play footage - coming soon)

The game looks nice. The movement of fluid bags (first way I could think of describing them lol) of your character and objects looks good. I like the music, sound effects and the facial expressions that little Cyto makes.

I guess you could call it a problem solving game, how do you reach all the pickups while avoiding hazards and getting to the exit. You have various methods of navigating the environment with Cyto. Launching, slingshotting, climbing, stretching out or just dropping down.

It's very easy to learn to play. I don't think I even saw a main menu, the just begins from level one and provides visual tutorials as you go. Just use the mouse and one button.

I would recommend this game for anyone looking for a simple puzzle game of this type.

Click here for more let's play videos =). Art works pretty nice..all in all, a pretty descent game. Good game to play if your looking to pass some time.. Cyto is a visually stunning game, and the ambient music to go along with the game is just as stunning. The levels get progressively harder. This game reminds me a lot of Angry Birds, except i find Cyto much cuter. And working to bring his memory back is a much more interesting goal for me. Overall this is an amazing game, fully worth the money you pay for it.
